

Passing on the faith to your child

Archdiocese of Liverpool

How to pass on faith to your child.

What is the best way?

Children need to know what your faith means to you. Talk to them, let them share your experiences, pray with them.

Let your home be a place where Christian values are evident – loving God and loving each other.

Children learn by experience so they need to go to church in order to feel a part of it, to help them to understand about the Mass, the Sacraments and the community of the parish.

If you attend church and go to school for assemblies and meetings about the Sacraments and RE it will mean a lot to your child.

Remember that you are the most influential people in your child's life. No one has all the right answers. Everyone is on a different faith journey and it is important to share and enjoy that faith journey with your child.
